

(*) : Connection for endpoint creation and for communication authentication in endpoint & query caching

(**): The binding component just wires the connection to the external provider's web interface. The http consumer will marshal the request and create the standard normalized message. The SQL translator (SE) from the other diploma thesis have to translate the message in order to make it compatible with the external datasources interfaces.
If the target datasource is sql, then the query transformation and the data transformation must be done in the DA Transformer.
